The 902nd Military Intelligence Group hosted a visit from Anne Arundel County Executive Janet Owens and Melody McEntee, aide to Congressman Dutch Ruppersberger, last week. The ladies received a briefing about the 902nd MI Group and its connection with the local community.

The 902nd MI Group commander, Col Michael Bisacre, shared instances of volunteer participation with the county’s community activities; such as Partners in Education with Meade Heights Elementary School, the annual Navy “Ridgeway Elementary” Special Olympics event and Habitat for Humanity, as well as little league coaching and support to various Scout Troops.

Bisacre emphasized how being a “part of the community means giving back to the community through support.” He stressed the fact that the linkage of the 902nd MI Group with Fort Meade is going to benefit the county immensely stating, “We can educate Congress regarding the global war on terrorism by taking advantage of our resources given and working together.” The integral support provided during the recent “sniper incident” was one example used as a demonstration of working together and using
